Drive Time Analysis

Drive Time Analysis is a tool which can be used to depict the number of potential customers. The map below is centered on the Cameron city hall, see the red star. The pale yellow area represents the geographic area which can be reached in a 5 minute drive from city hall. The red area expands the reach out to 10 minutes and the blue indicates a 15 minute drive.

This can be used to target potential customers for Cameron businesses. Direct marketing could be targeted at all areas that contain households with a history of spending on a specific product. The targeted households could also be within a 10 minute drive. A summary of the demographics for each drive time window is below. Full details are in the appendix.

Demographic Study

Data for local communities come from government and private sources, and each source has its strengths and weaknesses.

The U.S. Census is the most well known source of demographic data sources. Census data have many advantages. First the census has had a fairly standard set of questions and categories as well as a consistent methodology over many decades, which allows good long-term perspectives. Census data reflect a hierarchy of geography, with smaller areas accumulated in larger areas. The nation, states, regions, counties, cities, towns, places, census tracts, and census blocks are some of the most important categories.
